WATCH RATING NAVIGATION AND ENGINE ROOM (TAGS PROGRAM)

DISTANCE LEARNING

DURATION: Self-paced

COURSE DATES:
Navigational Watch Tags Book | $665

Engine Room Watch TAGS Book | $665

Qualify to perform duties as part of a watch, either navigational or engine room, by undertaking a Training and Guidance Study (TAGS) workbook of the appropriate discipline.

To become qualified to perform duties as part of a watch, either navigational or engine room, seafarers need to undertake a Training and Guidance Study (TAGS) workbook of the appropriate discipline.

A TAGS workbook is completed entirely on the job, and includes a guide for both trainees and trainers.

Navigational Watch Rating and Engine Room Watch Rating are international certificates that enables you to assist in keeping a navigational watch and engine room watch.

To be eligible to apply for this certification, candidates are required to complete a Training and Guidance Study (TAGS) workbook of the appropriate discipline. The TAGS workbook is completed entirely on the job, and includes a guide for both trainees and trainers. There are additional requirements, which are outlined on the Australian Maritime Safety Authority website: Engine Room Watch Rating or Navigational Watch Rating
